

ARTICULATING A HIGH-LEVEL GOAL FOR THE WAYFINDER PROCESS

PURPOSE OF DISCUSSION

The purpose of this discussion is to agree on a high-level goal for the Wayfinder process, especially since these might have changed along the way. A useful way to start this process is to revisit the Aspirations and the Change Narrative developed in Phase 2, and then to look at what level of change that might be required to address the dilemmas and move towards aspirations. DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

- Given what you now know about system dynamics, and drivers for change are the aspirations still desirable, achievable, and agreed upon?
- Has something new emerged during the Wayfinder process that makes you think differently about the aspirations, the dilemmas, the potential solutions to these, or the role that your Wayfinder process may have in creating change towards sustainability?
- Is the initial Change Narrative, that you developed with the Coalition in Phase 1 and with the larger stakeholder group in Phase 2, still relevant?

- How challenging are the dilemmas and how much of a concern are the trends in option space, and what level of change will be needed to address them?
- What degree of change (from persistence to transformation) will be required to address your dilemmas and to navigate towards a more sustainable future that will meet stakeholder's aspirations?
- How could a goal for the process be formulated that weaves together some expression of the dilemmas, with the aspirations and the level of change needed?
